About DEEP HISTORY

DEEP HISTORY is a show about climate change and climate crises, especially the Australian bushfire of 2019. The show explores six major turning points in history spanning 75,000 years. The performer guides the audience through these moments to see what lessons we might learn about the world and climate today.

Considerations for DEEP HISTORY

Please review the following information as you consider attending this sensory adapted performance:

DEEP HISTORY is a show about climate change and climate crises, especially the Australian bushfire of 2019. The tone of the show begins as optimistic, transitions to hopelessness and frustration, and ends with questioning what the future will entail.

Here are some specific things to note:

- There is a portion of the show where the performer goes into a panic spiral about climate change. He experiences intense emotions, raises his voice, and gives detailed warnings of current climate dangers.
- There are detailed descriptions of the harmful impact of wildfires. There are several vivid videos of bushfires.
- DEEP HISTORY is a dialogue heavy play.

The production contains minimal light and sound effects, for this performance they will be adjusted.

The house lights will remain on and dim throughout the performance.
