REIMAGINING THE FAMILY TREE

A DRAMATURGICAL EXHIBITION FOR FAT HAM NYC PREMIERE

CURATED BY NATIONAL BLACK THEATRE

BELONGING noun

belonging | \ bi-'lon-in, be- \

- a feeling of being happy or comfortable as part of a particular group and having a good relationship with the other members of the group because they welcome you and accept you:
 - · A sense of belonging is one of humanity's most basic needs.
 - It's a book about humanity, loyalty, and belonging, and about the ties that bind us to places and to each other
 - Cambridge Dictionary

Belonging is intrinsic to the human experience, but unfortunately all too often for communities that have systematically been marginalized and "othered", belonging is not a given; it's a privilege. This privilege is worth pursuing at all cost and often indeed costs queer youth in particular everything. Isolation, ridicule, abuse and judgment are often the catalyst to leave behind one's home in search for family.

Many LGBTQIA folx have to build their own chosen family trees in the face of rejection from their biological ones. In such chosen families, friends or groups act as stand-in parents for those who have been rejected or have difficult relationships with their families of origin. Chosen families are essential in forming bonds not only to escape homophobic ideologies but also to find pleasure and communion with others.

BeLONGING explores the journey of identity and belonging through the lens of self-identified southern queer photographers, iconic images of ball culture and excerpts from James Ijames' Pulitzer Prize winning play, Fat Ham.

With the continuous assault we are seeing on sexual orientation and gender identity today, branching out to create new family trees is more than just an act of survival but one of resistance, restoration and liberations!

We hope that this digital dramaturgical exhibit awakens a deep sense of care and awareness for how we belong to ourselves but most importantly to each other.

JUPE JAVETA

Jupiter "Jupe" Javeta is a Black southern, queer, nonbinary person who resides in Albany, Georgia where they were born and raised. They are an artist, culture keeper and community member who practices community healing through visual art, documentation, written work, and installations. Having grown up in the small city of Albany, Jupe fully believes in the power of intentionality + integrity. Jupe founded dts (down the street) media as a culturally insightful and community minded arts platform. Their visual work (photography & documentary short films) center reconciliation and reprieve for Black folks in the Deep South. Their written work centers grief as a ritual and rites process, and digs into the transformative potential of grieving. Their community work (events and arts spaces) focuses on marginalized communities and connecting people across those communities to places/spaces of rest, affirmation and communion. In each modality, they are driven by a deep love for their people and a determination to reflect it back to the communities they come from.

As a compliment to their upbringing, they also have an educational background in Design & Media, Carpentry and Afro-American Studies. With their lived experiences and educational experiences, Jupe brings an intersected lens that guides their creative processes.

CHANTAL REGNAULT

Between 1989 and 1992 in New York City , French photographer Chantal Regnault captured the Harlem House Balls and Voguing scene rise to fame. Regnault had the privilege to photograph the culture at this important turning point of its history. She took her lens to Balls , Aids Benefits and Clubs, brought the Ballroom to the studio and outdoors, producing electric, alive, loving and tender images. They feature the legendary Houses and their Founding Mothers, the famous Voguers and Runway stars of the Ballroom scene back then. The Houses also provided a family structure where the most socially fragilized members of the community, often the younger ones, could take refuge and find protection and advice from the older Mothers.

Chantal Regnault's work is an important part of the LGBTQ+ history shining a light on those courageous enough to be who they are, in a time when tolerance, let alone acceptance, was not a privilege given to them.
